

Empower Solutions Launches Model School District Project

Atlanta, GA (February 17, 2004) - Empower Solutions, a wholly owned subsidiary of Intelligroup Inc., announced that it has launched a project focused on improving business processes for school districts. The project, called Model District, will be built using SAP's mySAP Business Suite solution and focus entirely on processes and solutions that will benefit school districts.

Empower Solutions is uniquely qualified to undertake this project based on its deep experience with school districts. Empower has worked with numerous districts and education departments to implement enterprise resource planning solutions and will leverage that experience with the Model District project. The end result will include processes that support district specific issues like student activity accounting, teacher pay, and position control.

"As a trusted advisor to school districts and public sector organizations, we feel this blueprint solution for school districts will enable all school districts to capture the value and efficiency using the proven high impact solutions from SAP", said Jason Sanders, Senior Vice President of Public Sector Consulting. "Our goal is to reduce the time to implement SAP solutions for school districts as well as share best practices through a model set of configurations"

Once completed, this project will provide a benchmark for all school districts and enable districts to stay current with best practices and adopt standards that can support consistent organizational efficiency.
